CORVALLIS, OR., JULY 12, 1889.

A GOOD SHOWING.

The present administration is going right along with its duties to the American people. It finds no difficulty in reducing the surplus and doing it honestly and in the best way for the general good. During the month of June the public debt has been reduced $15,000,000, the largest reduction in any one month for several years.

Under the circular of April 17, 1888, the treasury department has purchased bonds amounting to $148,501,250, at a total cost, including premiums, of $172,170,550.28. From August 3, 1887, when the department first began purchasing, to and including to-day, the total amount purchased is $172,824,600, the cost thereof being $199,374,273.76. Had they been allowed to run until maturity the cost would have been over $235,000,000. The governor has therefore saved over $35,500,000 in interest alone.

It is easy to see how utterly baseless were most of the charges made by democrats during the last campaign against the purposes of the republican leaders in case they came into office. No attempt has been made to run the government expensively or otherwise than for its best interests. It is in the hands of honest and capable officials, who have the broadest ideas of the policy upon which such a nation should be conducted.

SULLIVAN completely knocked the stuffing out of Jake Kilrain in Mississippi on last Monday. Seventy-five rounds were fought and at the end of the last round Kilrain threw up the sponge. The fight was for $20,000 besides 60 per cent. of the net receipts of the tickets sold and the loser getting 40 per cent. There are a great many who thought the fight "awful" yet they would like that money and the physical condition of Sullivan—and very likely they read the full report of the mill.

THE Pacific coast has suffered fearfully from fires within a few weeks. First Reno lost $250,000; then came the awful conflagration at Seattle, with $15,000,000 consumed. Vancouver came next. Then Grass Valley had a turn. Carson City saw a handsome business block go up in smoke, and a few days following Hailey, Idaho, was almost completely destroyed. Then comes Ellensburg, and the entire business portion of that little city was swept away. Each city is fearful that it will be the next to be visited.

It was quite the custom for the Democratic press to remark that Harrison would not have much influence with this administration, when the cabinet was being formed. The record of the last four months has made quite a radical change in their estimate and opinion. Harrison's head is now admitted to fill his grand-father's hat full of brains.

THE Society of Locomotive Engineers was the most serious sufferer from the great "Q" strike of last year. It has lost fully 1000 of its members and so retrograded in power and influence that it will take ten years to build it up to its standard before the strike. The organization is a good one and should survive if it would let strikes alone.

WITH the connection of the O. & C. R. west side at Junction and then to have the Astoria road connect with the same line at some point below, or right here, would give Corvallis a great deal of prominence as a city, then placing her on two transcontinental lines.

A $20,000 schoolhouse, two new brick store buildings, and a few new residences, besides the agricultural college dormitory, shops and barns, is the amount of buildings in progress now in Corvallis.

BUSINESS in the advertising line of the GAZETTE not being so brisk as formerly the original size of the paper has been adopted—that of a 6-column.

THE KINDERGARTEN.

[Published by Request.]

Some women have the mother instinct largely developed by nature. They feel they must "mother" everything that is weak and needs help. To their natural gift they have added knowledge. They learnt much from their own mothers, and much from their own experience gathered in youthful years. They have learnt from wise words, and wise books, and they have thought out their own thinkings. They have looked back to the wants and yearnings of their own childhood, and their warm sympathy makes them apt learners in the school of life, in which little children are mostly found.

Such women, if blessed with firmness of will, and persistent methods, can nurture their children well. They will care for the little body as to its health. They will provide activities for its restlessness, soothing it the while with mother song. Its active plays will soon merge into real occupations, that means something useful to mothers while she is about her household duties. All the time the mind is being awakened through the work of little hands. Every little incident at home, and every fresh sight in the garden or abroad is, as it were, a parable, whereby she teaches her child something fresh. She wakes up love in its heart to all that lives, thereby kindling in its spirit a warm interest in what it learns gradually to observe, and she points through nature to God the creator.

This is the ideal mother. But many mothers have this instinct but partially developed; and what they have is overlaid with many things that are forever taking up their time and attention. The last chapter in their school life has been omitted; they have never had a lesson how to become wise mothers. The precious words "mother," which, in all European languages, comes from the old Aryan root, and means to "measure" to "manage." She should measure the capacities of the child's threefold nature, body, soul and spirit, and manage to draw them out in their natural order, (i. e. according to the law of their nature,) using the one as a feeder, so to speak, to the other. But our mothers have to much house keeping, or society keeping or decorating for society, to spend their time drawing out the baby's powers one by one, moulding them the while for the good of his whole future life.

Froebel spent the longest period of his life studying the real and ideal mothers among his German neighbors and counted up the number of those who for one reason or other could not "mother" their children when they were past early infancy. From this scientific study in the warmth of his large heart he invented the system of the Kindergarten—the garden of Eden for childhood. So we may call the Kindergarten organized motherhood.

DOCTORING IN THE DARK.

No sensible surgeon will attempt the performance of an operation involving human life in a room secluded from the proper amount of light. A practitioner will not attempt the diagnosis of a complicated disease unless he can see the sufferer and make an examination upon which to base his opinion relative to the course of treatment necessary to bring about a complete restoration of health. Notwithstanding the impropriety of such action there seems to be a great deal of doctoring done in the dark.

By this it is not intended that a literal meaning be inferred, but that a great many mistakes are committed because of the darkness which is the result of ignorance. It needs no illustration to demonstrate that gross ignorance has caused many fatal mistakes to be made in the treatment of diseases by those who profess to be learned in the art of healing.

In many diseases several organs are more or less implicated and what seems a primary ailment may be quite remote. For instance, a severe headache may have its origin in a disturbed stomach. On the other hand, sickness at the stomach may be caused by a blow on the head. The rest of typhoid fever is in the upper part of the bowels, but most of its worst symptoms are often in the brain.

Symptoms of disease as well as diseases themselves are oftentimes followed or concomitants of some unsuspected organic disease and this is peculiarly true of lung, liver, brain and heart diseases in general, for it is now known that they are the result of kidney disease, which shows its presence in some such indirect manner.

Several years ago a gentleman became convinced of the truth of this and through his efforts the world has been warned of kidney disease and as a result of continued effort a specific known as Warner's Safe Cure was discovered, the general use of which has shown it to be of inestimable benefit in all cases where kidney treatment is desirable or necessary.

When consumption is threatened see to it that the condition of the kidneys is immediately inquired into and if they are found diseased, cure them by an immediate use of Warner's Safe Cure and the symptoms of lung decay will rapidly disappear.

There are too many instances already recorded of the terrible results produced by a lack of knowledge concerning the cause of disease, and human life is of too much importance to be foolishly sacrificed to bigotry or ignorance.

CORVALLIS's board of trade evidently has been traded off. Or, probably, it has been washed away by the water ditch question.

LOOKOUT how your chimneys are. A little caution now may prevent a conflagration during this dry summer.
